

Distributions use one maintained posterior and different weight choices. They are not repeated-training performance distributions.